The information you disclose to your mental health provider will be kept confidential within the limits of state and federal law. Communications between mental health providers and students/clients are typically confidential, unless the law requires their disclosure. Mental health providers will inform you of the legal exceptions to confidentiality, and should such an exception arise, will share only such information as required by law. Examples of such exceptions include but are not limited to:

- abuse of a child
- abuse of an incapacitated adults
- orders of the court
- significant threats to self, others or property