Please join the Community Colleges of Spokane Foundation in “A Celtic Celebration”

A benefit for Spokane Community College’s Hagan Foundation Center for the Humanities.

Sponsored by: Central Pre-Mix, O’Doherty’s Irish Grill, Odom Corporation and the Limerick Society.

This special celebration features the premiere of the video documentary
From the Kitchen to the World Stage:
The Farmer-Musicians of County Sligo, Ireland

By Dr. David Such

David Such’s third music documentary brings together interviews he conducted with farmer-musicians during a 1982 visit to County Sligo in addition to recent interviews and over twenty-five hours of footage shot last year on location. To penetrate the soul of Irish traditional music, this 50-minute documentary looks to Ireland’s farmer-musicians who kept the music alive through generations of famine and colonial oppression—long before Ireland became the European Union’s Celtic Tiger of today. Now, their relatively simple lifestyle stands threatened by the pressures of a globalizing economy. This documentary captures a pivotal time in the development of Irish traditional music and in the lives of farmer-musicians who reflect on their plight and the age-old links between music, land, and the past.

Master of Ceremonies: Doug Clark, Columnist for the Spokesman-Review.

Also featuring music by the Celtic Nots, and a discussion on the making of the documentary by the producers: Ethnomusicologist, Dr. David Such, and Electronic Media Producer, Michael Lynch.

The documentary was funded, in part, by a SCC Diversity Council grant.

Spokane Community College
Hagan Foundation Center for the Humanities

October 20, 2006, 6:30 p.m.

$25 per person

Purchase tickets through CCS Foundation by calling 509-434-5123 or at the SCC LRC Administrative Office, ext. 7045, by October 13

Don’t miss this unique opportunity to enjoy an evening of authentic Irish fare, beverages, music and educational discovery into the traditional music of County Sligo, Ireland!

Drawing for an HDTV, DVD/VHS player and numerous gift certificates.

HDTV and DVD/VHS will be displayed in the SCC Bookstore tickets $1 each.

All proceeds will be used to match a National Endowment for the Humanities grant benefiting the SCC Hagan Foundation Center for the Humanities.

Please join the Community Colleges of Spokane Foundation in “A Celtic Celebration”

A benefit for Spokane Community College’s Hagan Foundation Center for the Humanities.

Sponsored by: Central Pre-Mix, O’Doherty’s Irish Grill, Odom Corporation and the Limerick Society.

This special celebration features the premiere of the video documentary
From the Kitchen to the World Stage:
The Farmer-Musicians of County Sligo, Ireland

By Dr. David Such

David Such’s third music documentary brings together interviews he conducted with farmer-musicians during a 1982 visit to County Sligo in addition to recent interviews and over twenty-five hours of footage shot last year on location. To penetrate the soul of Irish traditional music, this 50-minute documentary looks to Ireland’s farmer-musicians who kept the music alive through generations of famine and colonial oppression—long before Ireland became the European Union’s Celtic Tiger of today. Now, their relatively simple lifestyle stands threatened by the pressures of a globalizing economy. This documentary captures a pivotal time in the development of Irish traditional music and in the lives of farmer-musicians who reflect on their plight and the age-old links between music, land, and the past.

Master of Ceremonies: Doug Clark, Columnist for the Spokesman-Review.

Also featuring music by the Celtic Nots, and a discussion on the making of the documentary by the producers: Ethnomusicologist, Dr. David Such, and Electronic Media Producer, Michael Lynch.

The documentary was funded, in part, by a SCC Diversity Council grant.

Spokane Community College
Hagan Foundation Center for the Humanities

October 20, 2006, 6:30 p.m.

$25 per person

Purchase tickets through CCS Foundation by calling 509-434-5123 or at the SCC LRC Administrative Office, ext. 7045, by October 13

Don’t miss this unique opportunity to enjoy an evening of authentic Irish fare, beverages, music and educational discovery into the traditional music of County Sligo, Ireland!

Drawing for an HDTV, DVD/VHS player and numerous gift certificates.

HDTV and DVD/VHS will be displayed in the SCC Bookstore tickets $1 each.

All proceeds will be used to match a National Endowment for the Humanities grant benefiting the SCC Hagan Foundation Center for the Humanities.